All of the members of the Early Years team have specialist qualifications to enable them to provide quality, play based, learning opportunities for all our children.
All experiences are through play based activities.

Our Ethos

The experiences of every child at this age are of utmost importance. Good Early Years practice is fun, lively, vibrant and child centred with lots of time for independent learning through child-led play provision. It is centred around hands-on experiences and challenges children's conceptions of the world around them.

Our Early Years Unit at Fishergate school is one of the most ethnically diverse within the city of York, our children come from a range of cultural backgrounds. In our Early Years provision, ethnic diversity and the children's different experiences are always celebrated.

Our Setting

We devote lots of time for our children to explore, investigate and develop their own ideas. By careful nurturing, and observations of the children's interests, motivations and learning styles, we aim to provide learning opportunities tailored to their individual needs. In this way, the children learn new skills and develop their understanding of the world around them through following their interests. Our full-time children also have short literacy and maths sessions which are fun, lively and interactive.
